Why Sponsor?

ACCJH offers health care and life-sciences organizations a focused setting for engaging with professionals from leading academic institutions, health systems, research organizations, government agencies, and community-based programs.

Reach a Specialized Community

Connect with professionals working at the intersection of health and the criminal legal system.

Build Meaningful Relationships

Engage with clinicians, researchers, faculty, institutional leaders, government officials, and community-based professionals.

Demonstrate Your Commitment

Show your organization's support for equitable health care, professional collaboration, and continued innovation in carceral health.

Choose Your Level of Participation

Whether your organization wants to exhibit, increase its visibility, or build stronger connections with the ACCJH community, these options offer several ways to participate.
