ABOUT ACCJH

The Academic Consortium on Criminal Justice Health (ACCJH) is a member organization with a mission to advance the science and practice of health care for individuals and populations within the criminal justice system. Our vision is to be the academic home for criminal justice health researchers, educators, clinicians, and scholars. The goals of ACCJH are to:

- Foster networks and interest in criminal justice health for mutual sharing, innovative thinking, and creative problem-solving to move evidence-based practice initiatives into clinical realities.
- Promote innovative research and support dissemination of best evidence to inform criminal justice health practice through conferences, seminars, workshops, and other learning opportunities.
- Educate ourselves and the public about evidence-based practice through interagency partnerships within the criminal justice community.
- Influence behavioral and cultural change within correctional institutions, as well as across health care institutions, to build and retain an understanding of the clinical and policy issues related to best outcomes.
- Acknowledge and develop skills and values that enable us to bring about change to empower staff and equitably share resources.

MISSION

To advance the science and practice of health care for individuals and populations within the criminal justice system.

VISION

To be the academic home for criminal justice health researchers, educators, clinicians, and scholars.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Be part of a vibrant academic community that validates your work in criminal justice health care!

ACCJH members will benefit from the resources of an academic community that conducts breakthrough research in correctional health care, and develops and promotes a broader and more critical view of the relationships between community and inmate health care. Membership has been tailored to meet the unique needs of individuals within this field, and it continues to evolve and adapt as practice and policy change. Individual and institutional members will also benefit from the following:

- Support for criminal justice health care, training, and scholarship in their home institutions.
- Development of trusting relationships with leaders in the field.
- Assistance and education to support the pursuit of research funding.
- Access to relevant criminal justice health information, news, and results.
- Access to a wide and expanding international network of criminal justice health academe and practitioners.
- Discounts for the Academic and Health Policy Conference on Correctional Health.
- Online curriculum to help health care students gain fundamental knowledge and become better equipped to work in correctional health policy and practice areas.
- Webinars on contemporary issues in criminal justice health

The ACCJH is pleased to offer Member365, an online platform designed specifically for associations and member-based organizations.

Member

Member365 will help strengthen member engagement and create a seamless experience, and provide members with the opportunity to be engaged and involved in all aspects of ACCJH's membership benefits, including conference registration discounts.

Member365* highlights include:

- Member Portal: The system provides a seamless membership profile on ACCJH.org with self-service tools for applying for, renewing and paying for membership, and logging into the site to enjoy member-only content. The system will instantly recognize membership status, translating to discounts on conference registration. Membership renewal reminders and invoices are automatically sent out for ease of payment.
- Expanded Membership Directory: Members have the opportunity to add as much or as little information to their profile as preferred, including a photo. It includes tools for interacting with fellow ACCJH members right through the site.
